HARDING NOT IN TO HEAD OF LEGION

Declines to See Commander When He Calls
to Get Aid

STILL DEADLOCKED

Farm Representative Discovers Someone Sought
to Inject Joker

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—President Harding this morning declined to see Hanford MacNider,
national commander of the American Legion, who came to the White House to demand that the present deadlock over the soldier
bonus be ended.

MacNider said he was told by George Christian, Harding's secretary, to come back this afternoon, when he "might be able" to see the President.

Land grabbing by others than veterans would be made possible
under the present draft of the soldier bonus bill, the opinion of these congressmen who have studied the measure closely.

It became known today that Representative Frear, farm bloc
man, had been warned that the bill contains a "joker" which would permit opening up public lands to others than ex-soldiers.

Frear intends to study the draft carefully, and if he finds that the land grant phase is too wide open,
he will undoubtedly take action
looking toward its amendment.

The original draft of the bill provides that the secretary of the interior (chairman of the farm settlement board) may withdraw from location, sale, settlement, entry or other disposition and place
under the control of the board,
such unappropriated public lands
as he deems necessary for any project; further, it permits of opening town sites in which the board may "sell lots under such regulations and on such terms as it shall prescribe."

Whether the joker was inserted to open up public domain is a question. Correction of this situation, however, would be a simple matter, it is said, for the wording
would merely have to be altered
to make projects specifically open only to veterans.

The house ways and means committee republicans meet tomorrow
to consider their course toward the bonus legislation. The sales tax as a revenue raiser is regarded as dead.

Meantime, the American Legion
is starting a movement to prevent further delay in passage of the legislation. Its leaders are provoked at what they regard a dilatory
position on the part of congress and intend to create, if possible, a sentiment against such a course.

Christian explained that Harding's time was so occupied this morning that he could not see MacNider. Harding is known to have rather resented the last letter of MacNider to him, received
last week, which strongly demanded a bonus at once. This letter has not yet been answered.

MacNider and his legion chiefs
are in Washington with the avowed purpose of forcing action
on the bonus.

Chairman Fordney of the ways
and means committee called at the White House again today and indicated that a revival of the excess profits taxes was being considered as a means of raising the bonus.

Reliance solely on the expected
British war debt bonds as a means of financing the soldiers' bonus
will be insufficient, House Leader Mondell held today after he and Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee had conferred with President Harding.

Ill Nature and Unwillingness Are Evil Says Foley

Ill nature and unwillingness
are undesirable stock.
That's what James W. Foley
says tonight in the "Listening Post."

He also says that smiles,
good nature, a willingness to serve honestly are always in demand.

He advises you to take stock
of yourself and to turn over your stock of energy, willingness, good nature, cheerfulness
and friendliness as often as you can, and it is mighty good advice.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE IS LEGAL

Supreme Court in Unanimous Decision Upholds
Amendment

MARYLAND LOSES

Test Suit Brought by Non-Ratifying State, Which Challenged Courts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The woman's suffrage amendment to the federal constitution was declared legal by the supreme court today.

The decision upholding the amendment was unanimous.

Affirming the judgment of Maryland state courts, the supreme court ruled that the nineteenth amendment giving women equal right with men to cast votes does not conflict with article 5 of the constitution.

The test suit was brought from Maryland, where the state legislature twice refused to ratify the suffrage amendment and passed resolutions challenging its constitutionality.

Oscar Leser and others of Baltimore challenged through the courts the rights of S. Cecilia S.
Waters and Mary B. Randolph, both of Baltimore, to register as voters in 1920.

The decision today was the first
given by the supreme court upon
the constitutionality of the suffrage law.

Justice Brandeis read the decision.

Previously he had announced a decision holding that secretary of state could not be enjoined from issuing the proclamation making the amendment effective. This was brought by Charles S. Fairchild,
New York, of the American Constitutional league.

Brandeis said the amendment
had been attacked in the Maryland suit on three grounds, all of which he declared were unsound.

These were that such an amendment was outside the amending power of the constitution; that five states, because of peculiar features of their constitutions, could not ratify the amendment and that the activities of the suffrage leaders in several states constituted irregularities.

Returning from the meeting of
chamber of commerce secretaries
of the state, held in El Centro from Wednesday until Saturday, Secretary James M. Rhoades and Assistant Secretary E. F. Sanders of the local chamber of commerce
announced that a new plan for the monthly forum meetings of the local chamber will be tried out.

This new plan is the discussion of a local meeting of some special line of business. A certain line of business will be chosen for discussion and specialists in that line in Glendale will be called upon to address the members on that business. These specialists will also lead in the discussion. In the case of choosing the real estate business for discussion at a meeting, several of the leading realtors of the city who are members of the chamber will be called upon to talk along realty lines.

Other business discussions will be handled in the same way.

This method of holding forums
was discussed by the secretaries
on the second day of the meeting and occupied the entire day. The forum meeting was discussed
from every angle. How often they should be held; whether they should be held in the afternoon or night, and the character of the exercises to be given at the meetings.

One of the big topics discussed
at the meeting was the selection of committees for work in the local chambers of commerce. The entire first day of the meeting was taken up with the discussion of how many workers should be on a committee, the type and character of people chosen for the various committees, and the best methods
of securing the fullest cooperation
of the committees after choosing them.

The third day was devoted to the discussion of the organization of chambers of commerce, and was led by Colonel C. A. Simmons, secretary of the San Francisco
chamber of commerce, who is one of the leading chamber organizers
of the state. His address touched on the uses of chambers of commerce, how it touches the community life and its power in the community.

Health of City Is Greatly Improved Says Bureau
in Article

The general health of the city
is apparently improving and the most epidemic of influenza seems to be ending. According to officials of the city health department between 25 and 30 children who have been out of school for the past few days on account of influenza were even permitted this morning to return to school.

Health officials say that while there are numerous cases of influenza reported in Glendale none of them are serious. The type of influenza prevalent in the city at present is more of a heavy cold or light attack of the gripe than a real case of influenza. This is the opinion of department officials.

The Southern Pacific Station

If it were not for the false impression it conveys to the traveling public, the Southern Pacific station at Glendale would be high comedy.

In these days when railroads are seeking the good will of the investing public, by every device in propaganda that the Southern Pacific should allow a station so impossible to remain is a display of inefficiency on the part of the company or it is the measure of the company's belief in the fastest growing city of the United States. In either case it is a reflection upon the executive discernment that would be alarming to a conservative investor in railroad stocks.

In terms of impression received by the casual tourist on the transcontinental trains stopping at the station,
it would appear that the city has been greatly over-advertised or the railroad is ignorant of its duty and its own interests on the premises.

The station should be torn down. It should be replaced by an adequate structure, or its premises should be cleaned up and beautified. If this would not be within the budget of the road, then the replacement of the existing ruins should be replaced by a plain pine and sawdust variety of structure. Newness in any form of structure is preferable to dilapidation and dank inefficiency.

BULLET HOLES IN MYSTERY AUTO FOUND

Capsized Machine Found
in Ditch on Verdugo
Road

POLICE SEEK OWNER

Car Had Not Passed Thru
Glendale and Was Unknown Here

With two bullet holes through the windows, the rear seat totally destroyed by fire and other portions of the interior, burned, a Haynes sedan was towed into the Hunter and McGrath garage today
from Verdugo road, where it was found in a ditch where it had apparently been deliberately driven.
The license number of the car is for 1922 and is No. 47374. Detectives of the Automobile Club of Southern California are investigating the case, working on the theory that the automobile is one that was recently stolen from Long Beach. Who fired the shots that broke the windows and how the fire started that destroyed the upholstery are the elements of mystery in the case.

According to a garage man who towed the car into Glendale, the car had been deliberately driven into the ditch and abandoned. It appears from the burns on the interior of the car that the fire was started after driving the machine
into the ditch. While the garage
men were removing the machine
from the ditch two young men approached and one of them said
that his brother had driven the car into the ditch. Later he said that he was driving the machine. He said that a motorist had been removed from the automobile since the accident. Until the machine's owner has been found and the mystery surrounding it has been cleared up the car will be held by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

RECKLESS DRIVING NO CRIME TO L. A. POLICE

Decline to Prosecute Case
in Arrest Made by Glendale Police

After arresting E. Shelling, who gave his address as in Los Angeles
on a charge of reckless driving,
the Glendale police yesterday
declined to prosecute the man
as the arrest was made in Los Angeles and the Los Angeles police declined to take any action
in the matter.

A report was telephoned in to police headquarters Sunday afternoon that a man was driving a car along the Verdugo road in a reckless manner. Patrolman Kearns, Detective Sergeant Herda
and Health Officer Hollenbeck answered the call and brought Shelling into headquarters. He was arrested about one-half mile from the Los Angeles city line on Verdugo road. When the Los Angeles police were notified of the arrest they told the Glendale officers to prosecute the man and declined to call for the prisoner.

COMPANY M TEAM IS DISORGANIZED

The basketball team of Glendale's company M of the California
National Guard will meet the Goodrich Rubber company team tonight
in the Glendale high school gymnasium. This game will decide whether Glendale's team moves up to third place in the A. A. U. or holds down fourth position. Awards to the local team after their defeat on Friday night at the hands of the team from Fullerton Junior college. The Fullerton team went home from the same on Friday night carrying the long end of a 24-to-28 score.

There were several reasons for the Glendale team losing the game
on Friday night. One of the best reasons was the fact that two of Glendale's star players were out of the game on account of sickness.
Another reason that to the minds of followers of basketball is equally as important is that some of the men on the Glendale team went on the floor apparently in poor condition to play. It appeared that some of the men are not keeping in the condition to be expected of members of a basketball team. Apparently poor condition on the part of the players coupled with the desire on the part of several players
to play the game alone and the willingness of the remainder of the team to let them do this played no small part in dropping the Glendale team into fourth place in the
A. A. U. league.

REFORMER IS EVIL

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—The reform-

public schools, according to Professor Frank M. Hunter, who is attending the National Education

"Parents should not forget the red-blooded days of their youth
and attempt to force adult ideas
upon young people," he said.

"There are worse things than
the modern dance, rolled hose
short dresses and galoshes."
"I would rather see the girl of today garbed in flapper styles
than in accordance with prudish
ideas of radical reformers."

Hunter said cigarette smoking
by girls should be discouraged, but
"many girls can go right in their mothers' boudoirs and find several cigarette stubs."

SYCAMORE CANYON TO GET FUEL

Meeting Called to Sign
Petition for Installation of Gas

2000 FEET OF PIPE

Cost to Be Figured on Ratio of Frontage and Distribution

A meeting of the Sierra Avenue
Improvement association is called for tomorrow night at the home of E. J. Parratt to discuss the two big questions that are facing the property owners of the Sycamore canyon district along Sierra avenue. These questions are the installation of approximately 2000
feet of gas pipe to tie into the gas main that is running at present
through Sycamore canyon. The widening and grading of Sierra avenue to connect with Sycamore Canyon road.

The problem of the gas main is this: In order to serve the homes
along Sierra avenue with gas, approximately 2,000 feet of pipe will have to be installed, starting at the main line on Sycamore Canyon road. The major portion of the expense incidental to the installation of the line will have to be borne by the property owners of the district in order to receive the service. The city is assisting in the installation to the limit of its possibilities in that district. The property owners will be asked at the meeting on Tuesday night to sign a petition agreeing to bear
their portion of the expense figured on a ratio with the frontage of their property.

The improvement of Sierra avenue to make it into a boulevard
connecting with Sycamore Canyon road will make it one of the best thoroughfares in the city and will bring that avenue up into the boulevard class.

At present Sierra avenue is 35 feet wide. Under the plans of the improvement association it will be widened to 70 feet, forming an adequate thoroughfare through one of the highest class residential districts in the city.

DR. ANDERSON TO ADDRESS Y.M.C

TELEPHONE GIRL SAVES RESTAURANT

Transmits Still Alarm of Fire From Pope and Tollette Cafe

The efficiency of a local telephone girl was the direct cause, according to Messrs. Pope and Tollette, proprietors of the popular South Brand boulevard restaurant, of preventing what might have been a very serious fire and resultant of a heavy loss.

Upon the outbreak Friday of a fire in the kitchen of their establishment, Mr. Tollette used the telephone to summon the fire department and the immediate arrival of the "boys" upon the scene of the conflagration was the result, and the outbreak was quickly checked after causing very little damage.

Mr. Tollette observed, "Some telephone service and some fire department."

The regular horn player of the orchestra was ill and the conductor reluctantly accepted the services of an applicant who played in an amateur brass band.

He was, naturally, a little doubtful of the technical ability of the amateur.

After the first performance the new player asked the conductor how he had done.

The conductor replied that he had done fairly well, but would do better, doubtless, with practice.

Whereupon the newcomer, exclaimed gratefully: "Sir, the music was strange to me tonight, and I'm not quite sure of it yet. But just wait till tomorrow night, and you aren't going to hear any of the fiddles at all!"

TREAT BATTERY FAIR SAYS EXPERT

Willard Agent Calls Attention to Needs of Automobiles.

"There is no other part of the equipment of an automobile more important than the battery," said Mr. Kuhns of the Cizek Autoelectric company in discussing the troubles incident to automobile.

"If your battery 'goes dead' you are certainly in a fix, especially if you are away from home and out of the reach of a service station. You can borrow gas or mend a broken spring or fix a make-shift that will get you into a station, but battery trouble is different—you are up against a hard problem if your battery goes wrong. The safest thing to do is to be sure your battery is right before you start on a long journey," continued Mr. Kuhns, who has given the battery problem years of study and observation. "And I know of no better way to do it than to have an expert inspect your battery. We make no charge for inspection, and we fix any battery regardless of the make. Of course we handle the Willard exclusively, but our battery men know the battery business from A to Z and can put life into any old battery."

"The Willard gives a service that is appreciated by the autoist. It is no uncommon thing to find a Willard Battery that has been run from two to six years without the least trouble to its owner. Many of our customers tell us they have no fears of their battery going wrong for it is a Willard, and experience has taught them that the Willard can be depended upon," concluded Mr. Kuhns.

"The business of the Cizek Autoelectric company has doubled during the last few months, and even with their large room and equipment they are often taxed to handle the rush of work that often comes. The New Threaded Rubber Willard Battery is proving a great seller."

NEW AUTO OIL TANK INVENTION

The tank for automobile oils, which has been invented and made in several models and workable sizes by F. C. Orr and F. C. Draper is about to be placed on the market, and these inventors say that it is their intention to conduct the manufacture of this product here in Burbank.

When the first tank of practical size was made it was described in the columns of this paper, but it may again be briefly stated that it is a tank with several compartments for the various grades of oil with a pump in the center which may be turned to draw the oil from any compartment desired. It is convenient and compact and entirely different from anything on the market. The last one made is finished in white enamel with brass fittings and other shining parts, and in appearance it might well be placed as an ornament in a spare drawing room.

In putting this invention on the market, Messrs. Orr and Draper feel that they have a bright future before them. It is a product that is practical and of commercial value. They have proven the article, and an undisputed market is before them and with the ever increasing demand for automobile oils, the increasing demand for economy of space and the increasing demand for devices of convenience and comfort, the inventors think they may rightfully feel pleased over the prospects, and Burbank may well feel pleased.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Oldest Inhabitant

When you and I were young, Magie and Johnny also, we thought nothing of climbing a dark narrow stairway to the little bedroom under the eaves, which was never heated and seldom boasted of even a candle, and even if the mercury was away below zero there was no warm fire to get up and dress by, no hot bath to jump into. Instead, the clothes were huddled on while we danced around the floor to keep from freezing. And the "get up" was long before daylight, too, so the dark stairway had to be negotiated again. We were none the worse for it either and I never heard of boy or girl falling up or down stairs, nor of any having even a finger or toe frozen. But nowadays our magazines and Johnnies must have a good fire to dress and undress by and they can't think of venturing upstairs, even in the twilight, without turning on the electric light. Frankly I think the new way is for the best, if we can afford it.

The humble tone assumed by the P. E. management in the recent conference held with the city officials is in striking contrast with the haughty attitude of years ago, when Glendale was a humble village of less than 3000 people. Then the tracks traversed the entire city and Tropic also along an unsightly hump from two to four feet high. At classic Broadway, even, it looked like a railroad crossing far out in the country. And, would you believe it, this hump could not be crossed by vehicles at any street between Park and Colorado (then Sixth street). The right of way "was walled in with curbing as it is in many places now, and it was mighty inconvenient for the driver of a heavily loaded wagon who wanted to cross at Maple or Ninth to have to go down to Park or up to Colorado to do so. Drivers of empty wagons often refused to do so, and more than once I have seen one go bumping across curbing and tracks, not caring how many dents he made in the concrete. As I remember it the first new crossing was put in at Ninth (now Windsor road). The next was Lomita, then Maple, Chestnut and Elk avenue. The last crossing to be put in was that at Gardena avenue, the last street crossing Brand near the south limits and that was but a few weeks ago.

CELLARS UNHAUNTED California cellar doors are seldom opened now that furnaces are controlled electrically. A thermostat, a clock or a push button now regulate the supply of warm air that is furnished by the modern gas furnace where formerly, excursions to the cellar were necessary.

Milady needs only to set the control clock if she wants her room to be comfortably warm on arising, or she may awaken for a minute and press the control button by her bed.

Not only is the furnace of today more convenient than the old methods of heating, but it is vastly more healthful than the many makeshifts that have been used in California, according to J. C. Baldwin, local sheet metal contractor, for it furnishes in abundance the most essential of all human needs—fresh oxygen.

too, for these inventors are Burbank men and, knowing the advantages this city possesses in facilities for manufacturing, they will locate their establishment here, thus adding one more valuable industry to the list, which is already a long one. The first tanks which are to be made at once before the industry can be organized on a commercial basis, will be made at the present place of business, the Service garage, on West San Fernando boulevard.

MISS HAUSAM TO STUDY PLACEMENT

Recent Guest of Business Women's Club Is Sent Chicago Conference

The Los Angeles County Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs has sent Miss Winifred M. Hausam, chairman of the vocational guidance department of the organization to Chicago to the national conference of the bureau of occupations which opened there February 22. The national vocational guidance association and the national association of deans of women will join in the session.

It is expected that Miss Hausam, who was a guest and speaker at the recent banquet of the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club, will gain much information of value and also carry to the conference much valuable information relative to developments on this coast, where California was the first state to send a representative to this annual conference. This year the state will be represented by two delegates, Miss Hausam and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Snell, appointment secretary of the Leeland Stanford university.

As the national committee of bureaus of occupations now has bureaus operating in 14 of the largest cities of the United States, the question of having a national field secretary is being considered and Miss Hausam has been appointed chairman of a committee to present the matter to the conference and to suggest ways and means of bringing it about.

The vocational and placement bureau which has been started by the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club now has 60 applicants listed for positions, and is also having many calls for help, especially nurses who are in great demand owing to the prevalence of grippe and kindred ailments which have been aggravated by chilly, wet weather. Practical nurses are in special request, also housekeepers who will come in and help out in such emergencies.

Any one desiring help, or any woman seeking a position who wishes to take advantage of the opportunity to register, for which no charge is made, should call at the noon hour at the club headquarters at 269 1/2 South Brand, up stairs, or should telephone Glendale 1525-W, at the same hour when a representative of the department will be present to receive the application.

"Mary, were you entertaining a man in the kitchen last night?" "That's for him to say, mum. I was doing my best with the materials I could find."

"It measured twenty-four feet," he said, "from snout to tail up." "Everybody looked surprised, but nobody insinuated disbelief in the story—nobody but an old Scotsman, who proceeded to recount the story of a fish he had caught. He had been unable to pull it in alone."

"It was a skate," he said, "and it covered two acres." The nobleman looked at the Scot through his eyeglasses and left the room. Others followed by and after a whole host returned.

"Sir," said he to the Scotsman, "you have insulted my guest and you must apologize." "I didn't insult him," said the Scot.

"Yes, you did, with your two-acre fish story. You must apologize."

"Well," said the braw and wary Scot, "tell him if he'll take 10 feet off that tiger I'll see what I can do with my fish."

Talent never is smothered if there is practicability behind it. The only thing that can happen to it is to be obscured temporarily if it's genuine.

The average political orator who howls about the independent life of a farmer doesn't know an ox yoke from a horse collar.

ODD FELLOWS WARM NEW HOME

Program of Entertainment Attends Formal Opening of New Quarters

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows which had its humble beginnings years ago when Glendale was young and when the business center of the town was at Glendale avenue and Wilson, has reached another milestone. It does not assume that it has reached its majority for it has great plans for growth in the future, but it has lived through several periods or "ages" and is no longer an infant institution.

The celebration of its new period and entrance into its beautiful and commodious lodge home in the Ralph building took place Saturday night when all members of the lodge able to get there, their friends, and the representatives of neighboring lodges in Lancaster, San Fernando, Burbank, and Van Nuys were present to rejoice with them, and one grand officer was there who made a brief speech of congratulation.

A tally of those present as made by officers, showed that 385 persons enjoyed the hospitality of the lodge at the entertainment which opened at 8 o'clock with prayer by Chaplain C. R. Norton, and with Alfred Rimes presiding as Noble Grand. The secretary, M. B. Brown, was unfortunately on the sick list.

A wonderfully varied and interesting musical entertainment was furnished by the Hurlbert Family of Los Angeles, a father, mother, three daughters and 7-year-old son. All are musicians, the little boy at times acting as director to the great amusement of the crowd. Fifteen different instruments were played including trombone, cornet, violin, drums, electric bells, piccolo, etc., and the young ladies sang in a manner which the crowd approved.

At the conclusion of the program guests were introduced to the banquet hall where a "noble" supper was served as people came and went during the remainder of the evening which was devoted to dancing, the entertainers referred to furnishing the music.

While no serious dedication was attempted, it was a highly successful "opening" which will tend to popularize the lodge and the hall.

Oswald Garrison Villard, the New York radical, said the other night at Cooper Union: "Our young men, chastened by the world war, have higher ideals than those of 1914. A notorious war profiteer was talking to a group of young men on a golf club veranda. 'Look at me,' the profiteer said. 'Twenty years ago a poor boy, working like a dog, and today—' he chewed violently on his dollar cigar. 'Look at me!' he repeated. 'See what I've done for myself.' The young men looked at him curiously and then one of them said: 'Your motive's good, of course, but doesn't your family object to your posing as a horrible example in this way?'"

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yost, who have been living on Riverdale drive since they moved from their home in the foothills, are now living at 839 Hill street, Eagle Rock.

Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Sterling have come to Glendale from Long Beach and have purchased a residence at 508 Myrtle street, expecting to make their permanent home here.

Truths in Epigram

Heroism is the brilliant triumph of the soul over the flesh, that is to say over fear: fear of poverty, of suffering, of calumny, of illness, of loneliness and of death. There is no real piety without heroism. Heroism is the dazzling and glorious concentration of courage. —Amiel (1821-1881).
He's true to God who's true to man. —Lowell (1819-1889).

BUCKET SHOPS

Just at present there is a definite fight being made against the joint more courteously known as a bucket shop. This is a place to which the hopeful investor brings his money, and leaves it. He invariably arrives with hope that he will get the money back, and more with it, but he never does. So far as profits are concerned, he might better throw his earnings into a well, for a well has a bottom. He could recover his principal later by means of a ladder and a scoop. The bucket shop has no bottom.

People far away from investment centers are unlikely to be able to know the difference between the real financier, who does sometimes offer the public something worth buying, and the bucket shop proprietor, who is of exactly the moral status of the confidence man hawking spurious stock, or neatly gilded bricks. There are so many methods of getting swindled nearer home, that the natural-born sucker is wronging his community in donating his all to a distant bunko game.

There are abundant opportunities for legitimate investment. Many lines of development are calling for capital. Many issues of municipal and school and state bonds are as good as gold. Mortgages always are to be had, and real estate is solid security. In every city are sound financial institutions, the managers of which are competent and willing advisers. There are brokers of assured reliability. Nevertheless, to certain types of mind, actuated by greed, the bucket shop, with its glittering and empty promises is a lure that cannot be resisted. Therefore the effort to abolish the bucket shop really is partly a matter of protecting the ignorant.

RECALLING MR. HARVEY

Senator Reed demands the recall of Ambassador Harvey. The serious aspect of this is that the friends of Reed are forced to see him in the attitude of crying for the moon. Despite the urgency of the demand, and the fact that Hearst is delighted with the idea, no reason appears for regarding the recall as imminent, or as even distantly prospective. The offense charged against the ambassador is that he admits that the United States and England are and ought to be on friendly terms. He regards the combination as useful. He sees in it the assurance of world peace. The crime of being on friendly terms with any foreign power, but particularly with Great Britain, has been pointed to many times. Nevertheless, with an obstinacy that does credit to their intelligence, about one hundred million Americans decline to be horrified at the spectacle.

When Harvey first went across he did make a speech that was far from winning unanimous approval. It embodied much truth, and yet this was hurled in an unsugared dose that made it offensive to some Americans and English too. Perhaps, if at that time, Reed had framed his denunciation and suggested recall, his fervor might have found an echo. He permitted the psychological moment to pass. Meanwhile the British have forgiven, the Americans have forgotten, and the incident is closed and done.

When an ambassador is instructed to apply for passports and turn in his official keys, it will have to be on some excuse more valid than that he is engaged in maintaining amicable relations between the government he represents and that to which he holds his appointment.

A BELATED ROUND-UP

Certain information received from Detroit, touching a Los Angeles crime, is said to have "started a round-up of all the known drug peddlers" of the latter city.

The statement that there had been a round-up started somewhere of all the known assassins, or incendiaries, or burglars or highway thieves, would seem peculiar. As a matter of fact it would be no whit more peculiar than the statement quoted. Why should "known drug peddlers" be going about unrestrained?

It is impossible to lay too much emphasis on the danger that centers in the activity of the unspeakably depraved wretches who prey on the weakness of their fellows. Again and again the fact has been demonstrated that the hawkers of illicit drugs are not only a menace to public safety, but accessory to every form of evil known to mankind. They instigate murder. A large proportion of the robberies and the unspeakable outrages that shock society, come directly from their inspiration. The drug addict is morally dead. Often it is a question whether the effort to reform him is worth while. Life, when not brightened by the rays of the mimic world his indulgence creates, is a burden to him. There is no wickedness to which he is not ready to resort in order to satisfy his yearnings. Of conscience he has no shred left. A false but dauntless courage spurs him to any desperate deed.

The "dope" peddler is much to be dreaded because himself frequently a victim of the poison he distributes. Often the addict takes a fiendish delight, quite apart from the question of profit, in spreading the deadly habit. Yet an instance comes to light in which such a demon is responsible for a specific act of violence, and "known peddlers are rounded up." To be a known peddler of the type under consideration, should be the assurance of already having been rounded up, and placed beyond the power of doing harm.

EDUCATIONAL TESTS

Certain so-called educational tests, applied to university students and professors, resulted in the students receiving credit for greater mental alertness than their instructors.

It is fair to say that to the individual not carried away by zeal for the teachings of the modern psychology, the tests in question seem silly and futile.

The mature mind has learned that there are subjects in the world worth thinking about, and has put aside childish things. The alteration of mental habit with the passing of the years is as undeniable as the alteration in physical form as one develops towards full growth.

Here is one of the questions: "Give the names of animals represented by these letter combinations: Cta, Olni and Gdo."

Naively enough the correspondent explains that the correct answers are cat, lion and dog.

Now a child of six years, having average intelligence, could answer this question. A high school pupil unable to answer it at a glance would be inexplicably stupid. The older person, hesitating, would in all likelihood do so from the thought that he was engaged in a foolish task.

A lot of boys playing in the school yard where there is a turning pole, will be observed to "skin the cat." No group of teachers could be stirred by the impulse to do likewise. A baby bites its own toe, but surviving to the day of shoes, drops the habit. The individuals of a race are marked by mental and bodily changes. The fact is nothing to get surprised about. Why should a full grown person, with some duty to perform in life, submit to the indignity of writing, with speed or without, his conclusion that Cta may be made to be Cat, by transposition of letters?

There is nothing surprising in the circumstance that rich women in the east have been made the victims of confidence operators. Some such women make great display of their wealth, and have not had much training in business. When the affable and practiced swindler approaches them, weaponed with all the arts of flattery, he finds easy game.

The charge that a coterie of reporters made a prisoner of a man who, as they thought, was concealing knowledge of a crime, has been mentioned. Also they sought to intimidate him, resorting to cruel methods of mental torture. That the incident should be regarded as closed does not seem a manifestation of the perfect working of justice.

Senator Cameron of Arizona seems to have been responsible for defeat of the appropriation for Grand Canyon park. Probably his course will excite hostility in his own state, although it may have been a wise and proper course at that.

The Charge of the Light Brigade

By DR. FRANK CRANE

"All in the valley of death
Rode the six hundred . . .
Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die:
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred."

Forever this poem of Tennyson will be a type of them who fling away their lives for something they esteem more worth while.

In the battle of the ages the goal of the greatest souls has been the realization of humanity and the breaking down of all walls that separate men from men.

Greatest of all is the tragic figure of Jesus of Nazareth, who 2000 years ago in a world which is even to this day imprisoned in contentious patriotism, knew no patriotism but humanity, no brotherhood but the human race. He was put to death between two thieves.

Since His time there have appeared here and there in the world's history men who in one way or another envisaged the same dream. Some were obscure, some conspicuous. All failed.

We think of Robert Owen, who, when the statesmen of Europe assembled in 1818 at Aix-la-Chapelle to attempt one of the periodic adjustments of the continent, proposed to the assembly: "If you will not agree among yourselves to call a congress of the leading governments of the world I will unfold to you the natural means by which you may with ease and pleasure gradually create those surroundings in peace and harmony which shall have a perpetual, good and superior influence upon all our race," and reminded them that they "could without war easily induce all governments and people to unite in practical measures for the general good of all throughout futurity."

And a Frenchman, Daniel Legrand, a manufacturer in Alsace, who addressed various memorials to the governments of Europe from 1840 to 1847 to the same effect.

And of Louis Wolowski of Lausanne, who declared that so many treaties having been concluded with the aim of killing men, he wished to be able to witness the adoption of similar means to enable mankind to live. This was in 1873.

And of Colonel Frey, a Swiss statesman, a volunteer in the American Civil war, afterwards Swiss minister at Washington, and finally president of the Swiss republic, who conceived that "the suppression of industrial competition by international regulation constituted the best means of alleviating the hard lot of labor."

And of Elihu Burritt, the learned blacksmith of Massachusetts, who coined the phrase, "Above all nations is humanity."

And at last of Woodrow Wilson, who set all Europe aflame with the vision of a world organized to prevent war instead of making war, and who fell as Caesar fell,—covered with wounds.

But all these, and many others who have had this intoxicating dream, have not fallen in vain.

Little by little the inert minds of men awaken and the children of them who stone the prophets build the temples.

Said Gerald Massey:
"Oh, the prophets, bards and seers
In the horoscope of nations
Like ascending constellations:
They control the coming years."

THE LISTENING POST

Turn over.
That is what the merchant aims to do with his stock.

Turn it over.
Not to keep it on the shelves.

You have a stock.
You are a merchant.
Whether you have a store with plate-glass windows in it or not.

You have a stock.
You have goods in your windows.

You have goods in the windows of your eyes.
In the speaking places of your smile and good nature and willingness.

Or you have undesirable goods in frowns.
Ill nature.
Unwillingness.

Not much of a demand for the latter in these days.

The market is overstocked.
Indeed, a very little frowning and ill nature and unwillingness will glut the market.

We will reverse the usual order.
Instead of being a salesman you are a buyer.
What kind of goods do you want?

If you were in the market for a clerk, a salesman, a friend, what kind of goods would you want?

Would you want crustiness and sharp speech and acidity and shortness?

Or would you want a smile, and good nature, and willingness and a desire to serve honestly?

Well.
That is what the other fellow wants.

That is what he is looking for when he sizes you up.

He wants to know what kind of goods you are.
Whether you are all wool or shoddy.
Whether you are a fast color or whether you will run and lose your quality at the slightest hardship.

Yes.
You have a stock of goods.
That the world needs.

If you will put your best goods out where the world can get them.

And then keep your stock turning over.

For every time you turn your stock over you ought to make a profit on it.

Every time you do a thing that is usable in the world you are making a profit.

Because you can do it easier and better the next time.

The lazy man.
He never turns his stock over.

There it stays on the shelf getting moth-eaten and dusty and mildewed.

He has or he had just as good a stock as anybody, but he did not keep it turning over.

He didn't put any good deeds in his windows. He did not exert himself at salesmanship.

And so his stock of goods became creased and wrinkled and undesirable.

Had to go on the bargain counter:

Any time your stock of labor goods becomes undesirable it has to go on the bargain counter.

And you have to take what you can get for it.

And even then the return is low.

Because nobody wants poor goods except at a very low price.

Keep yourself off the bargain counter.
Keep your goods moving.

Turn over your stock of energy and willingness and good nature and cheerfulness and friendliness as often as you can.

Put your goods in the show windows of your soul and spirit.

And you will always have customers.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Sea Gipsy—By Richard Hovey (1864-1900)

I am fevered with the sunset,
I am fretful with the bay,
For the wander-thirst is on me
And my soul is in Cathay.

There's a schooner in the offing,
With her topsail set with fire.

And my heart has gone aboard her
For the Islands of Desire.

I must forth again tomorrow!
With the sunset I must be
Hull down on the trail of rapture
In the wonder of the Sea.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

The rule of saying nothing but good of the dead would almost bar mention of some statesmen not yet formally deceased.

Rockefeller millions are showing a reluctance to becoming allied with the lively stable business.

With everything coming in and nothing going out, it is a mystery how a bucketshop could fail.

Many people in France seem to object that Landau, better known as Bluebeard, is being permitted to maintain intimate relations with his own head.

Both Carolinas profess to be the native state of General Jackson, but what the respective governors are remarking to each other about it is not recorded.

There is no perceptible tendency on the part of the government to invest in more dirigibles.

The yellow cartoonist continues to portray Uncle Sam as a scandalous old ruffian, thus illustrating how unhampered is the freedom of the press.

One fact that seems to have been established at the trial of the "miracle man" is that when he ordered the sun to quit shining, the sun didn't.

Los Angeles starts to build a stadium. The usual thrifty citizen bobs up to stop the work. With a sufficient sprinkling of such thrifty souls, any community may be spared the trouble of developing.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

POOR FARMERS' WIFE

[Farm Life]

Some of the home demonstration and farm institute workers have taken great pride in pointing out the "downtrodden" and "overworked" condition of farm women. It was an artistic line of propaganda they handled, and we all fell for it to some extent. And now comes Izetta Jewell Brown, heaven bless her, and says farm women are getting tired of this sort of publicity. "The farm women, who have awakened to their own possibilities, say quite frankly that they want to start a campaign of optimism about country life," she declares. "They don't want to be pitied or patronized, just understood—and, if possible, a little idealized. They would appreciate it for a change." Since Mrs. Brown is a leader in the Farm Bureau movement, and has a notable influence in the organization, we hope that county agents and all other extension workers, as well as the brethren of the agricultural press, will consider her words and be wise.

BOUND TO WORK

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

New Jersey has something else to make it famous beside its ex-President and its clinging to wet legislation. It's the poetic justice of its judges. Every little while some astounding decision shows that the decisions of the law in that state have splendid logic.

There's the recent instance concerning the man arrested for insulting a woman on the street. When at first the judge sentenced him to thirty days in jail, the man's wife was loud in protest. How could she support herself and her little children with her husband in jail and consequently not earning? The proponent of the law, meditated. Then light appeared.

"Let him spend his week-ends in jail for that length of time," was his final verdict. "He may keep his position and each Saturday noon must bring his pay envelope home to you, then at once repair to the jail, where he must remain until time to go to work on Monday morning."

Why isn't that a great improvement on the usual procedure? Why make the criminal's family suffer from his misdeeds, as has often been the case when deprived of his support by court sentence? Many a poor wife has been agitated—not so much at the crime, for she had suspected that—but at the necessity of getting along for weary weeks without the money that meant at least some measure of help to her and the little ones dependent on her.

Law is such a queer thing. Propounded and passed by those considered the wisest of us, it so often lacks the merest shred of sound logic—its penalties are so poorly thought out, its processes drag along so interminably.

It may be that to women will belong the task of reforming it, of putting more directness into its statutes, and of making the penalties for breaking it rest on the head of the guilty more fully.

ian government there were outrages against nepotism, the practice whereby those in power could and did place in office other members of their families, and thus get closer control of government. It is a procedure which has won great disfavor through the generations; and even nowadays, when the politicians attempt it, as they not infrequently do, they omit to shout about it from the house-tops.

Mrs. Herbert Dorr of Richmond, Mass., has found an air-tight solution of the ancient problem. By her act of running for the same office to which her husband aspires as a candidate of the other party she insures that whatever else happens or does not happen, a member of the family will hold the office of town clerk. The scheme is so neat and fetching that the outlander who cannot hope to know the couple, and would not, therefore, be able to judge whether such a thing would be likely or not, will in some instances suspect it may have been devised by the husband rather than by the wife, who appears as its sponsor.

Yet, what would you? Husband and wife are each acting well within the inalienable right of the free-born American citizen to run for public office. It does not appear that anyone could stop them were any one so minded. For our part, we have no such intention. We register an emphatic appreciation of the collective ingenuity of the family, whether its origin spring from husband or wife. Wherefore we congratulate Richmond, Mass., on its soon-to-be settled possession of Town Clerk Dorr.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Robbers entered a Los Angeles store the other evening. They desired to conduct their business with lack of ostentation, for there were others present besides the chosen victim, the proprietor. Had they commanded him to throw up his hands and had he complied, that gesture would have been a signal for an exodus and a row. Being wise robbers, they instructed him in low but unhoneyed accents, to put his hands in his pockets and "look unconcerned." The fact that they got his money and got away, indicates that he succeeded in obeying orders. Thus from time to time is the element of novelty injected into the rather commonplace business of being a thief.

Many an individual about to be shot with nothing more deadly than the camera, has found difficulty in looking pleasant in accordance with the orders of the photographer, yet conditions for looking pleasant were comparatively favorable. Therefore it seems that the man who can look unconcerned when a pistol pokes him in the breast-bone, and an alien hand clutches his roll, has scored an artistic triumph. He is equal to the task of registering emotion of one kind, when the emotion he feels is quite different. There ought to be a place for him in the movies.

Horatio Bottomley, M. P., is accused of graft. So far he snaps his distinguished fingers at the accusation. A correspondent mentions him, as being next to Lloyd George, the most known public man in England, and reported to be the "finest lay lawyer in the world."

All that Americans know about Bottomley is that for a time he edited an obnoxious and unreliable paper known as John Bull. They don't know that he is guilty of graft, but are aware that his journalistic methods are offensive to the point of rottenness, and so will watch the case with interest but without sympathy.

Out through the mass and maze of conjecture, gossip, lies and bungled sleuthing, there seems at last to be appearing the element of truth that may solve the mystery of the Taylor murder. That this shall prove to be the case, is greatly to be desired. If the present indications are not misleading, Taylor was the victim of a plot of dope fiends, or "hopheads," not because involved in the nefarious traffic, but by reason of the unrelenting war he had made against it. At least until the issue can be decided it is time for the tongue of scandal to cease wagging, and the venomous pen to be given a rest.

Should facts sustain the theory that four people drove to the Taylor home with the intention of killing him, and that one did kill him while the others waited outside, nothing less than the hanging of the quartette, male and female, could be a step in the direction of justice. And the criminal lawyer to attempt defeat of the law by the not infrequent methods of chicane, would deserve to hang with the bunch.

It may not be said that the sudden death of Earl Rogers came as a surprise. For years his career had pointed to such a climax. An attorney of unusual brilliance, he passed away in what should have been the prime of life, his energies wasted, his mentality wrecked, the end a pitiful tragedy.

A minister at Long Beach publicly declared the city administration responsible for social conditions that appealed to him as very terrible. Members of the administration invited him to call and supply them with a bill of particulars, but he declined. Sometimes the hurling of general charges is done in advance of the obtaining of particulars, and later these useful details are strangely elusive.

Thieves in Chicago stole fifty gallons of embalming fluid. It is thought they did this under the impression that they were getting a supply of moonshine whisky. Probably they will retail the stuff without taking the trouble to verify its quality.

Embalming fluid doubtless has advantages over moonshine. Probably it is no more palatable, but indubitably it has the essential kick, which is the quest of the drinker now. Should the impact of the kick land him in kingdom come, the experience ought to be even more satisfactory than landing in the same place as the result of a long and expensive series of little kicks.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

For Sale—A lot of handsome cottages with all the modern improvements. Not yet, but soon.

I can see that sale in my mind's eye as clearly as though I were now listening to the auctioneer's gavel with my outward ear. It will be forced on the cottage owners by too much sociability. They are forgetting the narrow limits of our confessedly imperfect human race. The sale will begin about the time they decide that they cannot bear the sight of each other any more. It will end as soon as enough new blood has been brought into Lakeview Estates to change the present character of the colony.

"A lot of us—all young and congenial—have bought a tract of land on the lake front," they told me yesterday. "As soon as the frost comes out of the ground we'll begin building."

So I discovered what the plan is. The cottages are all to be grouped about a clubhouse that is to be common to them all. Each cottage is to be in sight of every other cottage, but not too near any other. No family is to be admitted to the colony which does not give promise of thorough congeniality. They all love music, golf, boating, swimming, dancing, home-brew, and fishing.

That colony will begin to go to pieces about a year after it begins to function. Such colonies always do. The best receipt in the world for the maintenance of friendship is not to see the friend too often. Even married couples ought to be separated by law at more or less regular intervals. The moment that Pa begins to come down to breakfast wearing deep parallel lines over his eyebrows and Ma forms the habit of traipsing around the house in a slatternly wrapper, the corner policeman ought to be empowered to step in.

"You'll not see each other for a month," he should say to them. "By that time you'll be in love with each other again."

Society is held together by the fact that, consciously or unconsciously, we all show each other our best sides. Each of us may think a little better of the other fellow than he really deserves. When we get too well acquainted we think a little worse of the other fellow than we ought. Then friendship ceases.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

In addition to their use as Christmas decorations mistletoe berries are capable of being used as a source of mudclage. The mudclage which causes them to stick to twigs can be and already has been extracted in a small way by water, and used as an adhesive.

MRS. WHITE TO ENTERTAIN

A big bridge and five hundred party, and one of the merriest that has taken place in Glendale in some time, was given Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Robert White on North Orange avenue by a group of hostesses, viz. Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, Mrs. R. A. Puffer, Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. Helen Campbell, Mrs. C. E. Norton, Mrs. Charles Meadows, Mrs. C. A. Parker, Mrs. Mabel Rudy and Mrs. John Robert White.

It was a benefit for a fund which the guests are interested in raising for an enterprise and will probably be followed by other parties at homes which have been offered for the purpose.

The house was decorated with acacia bloom and refreshments were served by the hostesses. There were fourteen tables of play-ers, and many who had expected to be there were forced to send regrets because of sickness in their homes.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S CLUB HOLDS A MEETING
The Glendale Business and Professional Women's club will hold its monthly social meeting Tuesday evening at club headquarters at 209 1/2 South Brand boulevard, up stairs.

It will be quite informal but by way of a look into the future a seeress will be there to read the horoscopes of members and tell them what vocations the stars indicate that they should follow. It is expected to yield some astonishing and amusing predictions, and all members who are interested in the occult or who have any powers along this line should be on hand to see what's doing and help with the revelations. The party will begin at 8 p. m. and will be in charge of Dr. Laura Brown, chairman of the social committee.

MRS. SHANK SINGS IN A.
As Glendale claims her as its own, Mrs. Catherine Shank, lyric soprano, who has made her home in this city for several years, it feels pride in the fact that this singer was the soloist at the Philharmonic popular concert Sunday afternoon at the Philharmonic auditorium in Los Angeles. Her numbers included "Dey Vieni Non Tarder," from the "Marriage of Figaro" (Mozart), and the beautiful "Waltz Song" from "Romeo and Juliet" (Gounod), and they won appreciative applause.

Mrs. Shank is reported as about to open a studio in Glendale where she will receive pupils twice a week. Her home on Riverdale drive has been leased for the season.

FAIR AMERICAN GUESTS WHO WILL ATTEND ROYAL WEDDING

No greater social good fortune could be wished for by the American-born women in England, who will have the privilege of attending the marriage ceremony of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles at Westminster Abbey, February 28. The rare honor of being invited guests to the royal wedding will no doubt arouse many an envious pang in the hearts of their American sisters. Among the fortunate portion of the American colony are: Lady Decies, formerly Vivian Gould of New York; Lady Ribblesdale, formerly Mrs. John Jacob Astor; the Duchess of Manchester, who was the former Miss Helen Zimmermann of Cincinnati; Lady Cynthia Curzon, daughter of the late Lady Curzon, formerly Miss Daisy Leiter of New York and Chicago; Mrs. Jacques Balsart, formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt and ex-Duchess of Marlborough; Viscountess Maidstone, the former Miss Margaretta Drexel of Philadelphia; and the Duchess of Roxburghe, formerly Miss May Golet, daughter of the late Ogden Golet.

The Once Over

Dum and Dummer on Hays and the Movies

By H. I. PHILLIPS

What do you make of Will Hays, the postmaster general, going over to the moving picture interests?" asked Senator Dummer, as he leaned against a swinging door in the corner drug store and fell into the street.

"I think it means the Republican party is thinking of saying, 'With all due respect to the next campaign,' returned Representative Dummer, rushing out and sitting down in the gutter beside him. "That's one of the few bright things you ever said," returned Senator Dummer. "Association with me is sharpening your wits. You've got it doped out exactly. The time when a party could win an election by depending upon a flock of long-winded speakers, a few catchy billboard slogans, and a few hundred thousand banners with oil paintings of the candidates under the words, 'The People's Choice,' has passed. Both parties found out in the last campaign that no silver-tongued orator could get an audience in any community where there was a good Charlie Chaplin film on the same night."

"And I'll tell the world," put in Dummer, "that when it came down to two rival billboards, one showing a picture of Pola Negri and the other showing a bust of Warren Harding or Jim Cox, it was no contest. "The movies have come to be the biggest advertising medium, next to the newspapers, in the country," resumed Dummer. "And the political party that rules the camera will rock the election results. "I'm not so sure," argued Dummer. "Certainly the Democrats had better representation in the movies during the war than the G. O. P. Every time I went into a movie house I was sure to see Newt Baker and Joe Daniels grinning at me from ear to ear and wig-wagging me with high silk hats. I think Daniels and Baker consumed more miles of film in the aggregate during 1918, 1919 and 1920 than Douglas Fairbanks. I got so sick of seeing 'em review-

get into that car at once.' The embankment was giving way and it was not safe to stay anywhere near our train, let alone on it. "So we picked up our bags and our robes and our invalid and started along the roadbed and the trestle of the railroad bridge. "Frightful!"

"We didn't have time to think of being frightened," said Mrs. Simmons. "We just tried to hurry as fast as we could get away before the train rolled over on us or the embankment caved in. The wind was blowing about 80 miles an hour and the snow stung our faces like needles. "The river was roaring along under us, just waiting for one of us to fall in, and the bridge was as slippery as the ties had been. I don't think I shall ever forget the sight of that stenographer, as tall as they make 'em and as gaunt and grim and aged, stalking along, hanging for dear life to that typewriter, as if determined that it was only over her dead body that any wreck could get it. "It took us nearly half an hour to get to the other car, and all the way Mr. Simmons was laughing like a crazy man. At first I thought he was delicious, but it seems that it suddenly struck him that the doctor had told him to avoid drafts and the night air, and he began to laugh at the way he was obeying. He started us both laughing, and all the rest of the trip, even when we huddled in a corner of that old baggage car, which was all they could get for us, we laughed about the night air. If you've ever ridden in a baggage car you may know that you might almost as well stay outside, as far as real comfort goes. "I should have thought it would almost kill Mr. Simmons. "It was kill or cure," returned Mrs. Simmons. "But he says the laughing cured him. But what he got down there his luggage was gone entirely. So we are not going to the Springs this winter—it doesn't seem necessary, somehow."

"Just how do you think a party can use the movies in a campaign effectively?" asked Dummer. "All you've got to do is to see that the candidate is liberally photographed skiing with the boarding school girls at Lake Placid, patting little children on the head, romping with an air-dale on the White House lawn, playing golf with a butler, and congratulating Mrs. Obidiah Digby of Lincoln, Neb., upon raising a family of 18 children," replied Dummer. "And if the Republicans can get a picture of the Democratic candidate in some such unpopular act as throwing an old shoe at cat or chaining up a dog, there will be nothing to it. "You seem to talk sense," asserted Dummer. "Right," declared Dummer. "Mark my words, the next campaign will see a well-directed movie campaign. And if I was running for any office within the gift of the American people I'll tell you how I'd want to be photographed. "How?" asked Dummer. "I'd get onto a broncho, tear into some western town and shoot up a soft-drink emporium. "You'd get every vote," asserted Dummer. "But do you know what you ought to do to make it a clean sweep?" "What?" "Get William S. Hart to run with you for the vice-presidency," replied Dummer.

GLENDALE KNIGHTS TO BE HONORED

To Be Guests of Los Angeles Council Tomorrow Night

Glendale Knights of Columbus are reminded of the fact that the local council is to be honored at a meeting of the Los Angeles Council Tuesday night at a program under the direction of Harry Girard. The Glendale Knights are to meet at Ralph's grocery, Broadway near Orange, at 7:30 and go in a body.

Then there are the sloppy moving pictures which are so moving that they move the audience to a desire to throw bricks at them.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC STATION AT GLENDALE

No, patient reader, this is not a picture from the film, "Why Towns Get That Way," showing the deserted ruin of the old, odd railroad station. This is the palatial station at Glendale, the fastest growing city in the United States—the city without an equal in spic, span streets and houses. It was taken by Dr. Henry R. Harrower, who was the original discoverer that the Southern Pacific had lost a station here. In a letter to President Sprout he discussed his find. Said Dr. Harrower: "I thought perhaps you would like a photograph to adorn your offices and so I have had one made merely so that you and your assistants may have an opportunity to note its architectural elegance and fitness, but also that by some possible chance it may prick the consciences of your board of directors. "Despite the fact that the name of our city—Glendale—appears only in very recent issues of your time tables and in practically no maps which you publish, it is now a real city and not by any means the kind of a place that the depot indicates to all who might pass it. "The population of Glendale is closer to 30,000 than to 25,000 and, according to very careful estimates based upon figures secured by the public service department, which serves both the electric light and water consumers, the population is growing at the rate of approximately 650 persons a month; and even though you and your board of directors should decide to replace the inadequate structure with a suitable one very soon, the population will then probably be between 35,000 and 40,000.

"In view of the fact that you like to advertise the merits and progressive character of the Southern Pacific system, I cannot but believe that this evidence—the letter and the picture before you—may, appropriately serve the purpose for which it has been prepared and forwarded."

BARBARA'S

WHY, PRAY TELL, don't you just call Glendale 2361-W—the GATEWAY MARKET GROCERY, at the corner of San Fernando Road and Brand Blvd., each morning, and leave your order? It would save you so much time and worry—and they maintain a free, prompt delivery service for the benefit of their patrons! And then, you know, their prices are so very low that you'll save considerably by trading with them, while at the same time the Gateway Market Grocery is known to carry only the very best quality goods! Order a pound of that delightful Gateway Coffee, prepared expressly for them—I know you'll never be satisfied with any other!

ORANGE SAUCE
Three egg whites, 1 cup of powdered sugar, 2 oranges, juice and rind, 1 lemon juice. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, add the sugar and fruit juice, and beat well.

COME, MY DEAR, let us stop for a moment at the GLENDALE MEAT MARKET, 632-34 East Broadway, where we'll find absolutely A-1 meats at the fairest prices. Mr. Ingledue is known as a "crank" at the various packing houses because he is so very careful in the selection of his stock. And every bit that he buys you may be assured is of the finest quality, for no bruised or inferior carcasses can be placed on sale at the Glendale Meat Market. When quality and service are considered, Mr. Ingledue's prices are the lowest possible. They deliver!

APPLE CUSTARD PIE
Three cups milk, 4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups thick stewed apples; strain through colander, beat eggs lightly, mix with the apples, flavor with nutmeg, bake with one crust.

IT'S A JOY to buy one's meats from Mr. Danner, proprietor of the RELIABLE MEAT MARKET, 1502 South San Fernando Road! Mr. Danner is always known to sell only the very freshest and best cuts—at prices that are really exceptionally reasonable! Even the best Eastern bacon which they carry is only sliced each morning as it is needed—that it may be kept fresh! Oh, yes, and they've established a department for fresh fish, in season, on Fridays now. Particularly, if you live in that neighborhood, should you trade at the Reliable Meat Market, but at any rate, you will do well to order your meat and fish there!

MONDAY—and BARBARA'S BASKET are synonymous! Barbara has chosen Monday to shop for you, Mrs. Glendale, because on that day it has been her experience, most cupboards are bare. And oh how she loves to visit here and there in the markets and stores, always searching for dainty and tempting eatables to grace your table. But one difficulty faces her now—and that is, the finding of original and tasty recipes! One so often tires of preparing food in the same way, and it would be so much better enjoyed if fixed just a little bit differently. Don't you suppose, my dear, that somewhere in that old cook book or in the drawer of your desk you might find the recipe for that mayonnaise dressing or that wonderful pudding your friends always enjoy so thoroughly? If you will simply send it to Barbara's Basket, care of The Press, she will most certainly appreciate it!

WINE SAUCE
One-fourth cup butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons milk, 5 tablespoons wine. Cream the butter and sugar, and add the milk and wine. Keep in a warm place until served.

NO, MY DEAR, YOU'RE wrong! I did not bake that delicious pumpkin pie for dinner nor did mother! But it is home-made, however, for I bought it at the GATEWAY MARKET BAKERY, corner of San Fernando Road and Brand Blvd. You see, they bake all their own pastries and bread, and the consequence is, that the finished product is far more nourishing and really less expensive than those cooked at home! The crust on that pie, now, is just as light and flaky as can be, and the custard is certainly deliciously spiced!

APPLE CAKES
Make dough as for standard biscuit, only use more shortening. Roll out flat, about 3-8 inch thick, and cover the bottom of the pan. Spread with good butter and sprinkle with sugar, nutmeg and cinnamon, or whatever spice required. Slice apples thin and lay on dough. Bake in pans, same as biscuits.

REALLY, I DON'T KNOW what would become of me if the PURITY BAKERY, 718 East Broadway, wasn't open on Sundays! It is indeed a boon to the housewife, for they bake fresh bread, cake and pies every Sunday morning! And, by the way, have you ever tasted any of their wonderful cakes? Well, you have indeed missed a rare treat—for they are perfectly delicious and entirely without that too frequent "bakery taste." You'll have to stop in at the Purity Bakery and try some!

THOSE WONDERFUL LAMB CHOPS I served at dinner last night were from the GATEWAY MEAT MARKET, corner of San Fernando Road and Brand Blvd., you know! One thing is certain—Mr. Caswell most assuredly carries a fine quality of meat (and at exceptionally low prices, I think), for they were just as tender and delicious as chops could be! But why don't you simply call Glendale 2361-W and have your meat delivered to you—they give special attention to telephone orders. And don't, whatever you do, forget to order some of Caswell's famous pure pork sausage, for breakfast—they make it themselves!

THE WICKED OLD RAVEN CALLS

By JOHN BARTON
(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Raven? What raven? Who's he?" asked the Woodfolk who were listening to Dr. Muskrat. For there weren't any ravens in their woods.

"Raven? Raven?" the old pad-dleapaw hesitated. For just a moment he lost his place in the story over the interruption. "Oh, the raven," he went on, "he was the granddaddy of old Uncle Crow. Funny old fellow he was, too, with a black feather beard and a moustache that came half-way down his crooked old beak—a few of his kin still wear 'em now. But they live way off in the backwoods where mighty few people see 'em. You see, in those days folks thought it was smart to pretend you were older than Methusalem, so they tried to look that way. Now, Uncle Crow, he knows that it folks think you know more than they do they're going to be suspicious of you, so he looks as spruce and young as ever he can. But, Snakes Alive! Who isn't on to him?"

"Well, as I was saying, there was quite a mess of young ones on that old oak tree where there lived the only folks in the world who hadn't been on the Ark through the Big Flood—yours, Chips Beaver, and Widow Chatter, and mine—by the time the raven came. That's how long it had taken Fluke-Slasher the Whale to find where the Ark had drifted off to. For the raven was sent by the whale.

"Weren't they spruced to see him? And none too pleased. None of the black-feather fliers are any too particular about what they eat. They sent their youngsters into those nice houses they had built—just a scuttling. And my great-grandparents were mighty thankful they'd used those terrible stiff twigs instead of soft grass that he could have stabbed his wicked old beak in. 'Course the lady

RALLY OF C. E.
Quite a group of Glendale young people attended the Christian Endeavor rally at the First Congregational church in Los Angeles, Saturday afternoon and evening, with a dinner served between sessions. Rev. C. M. Calderwood, pastor of the Congregational church of Glendale, took one auto load and Mrs. A. S. Chase another.

sat, all perched down in a bunch, with even his eyelids drooping. By and by he croaked out, "I'm just spang, bang wing-shot. Next time Fluke-slasher wants any one to flap his errands he'll pick on somebody else. The very idea of sending me half-way 'round the world with hazy a spot to rest my foot on. If it hadn't been for that seal—"

"Oh, you met my husband?" purred his mate.
"Most certainly did," sighed the bird. "I've got a message from him, too. But would you be so kind as to bring me up a clam to stuff my poor, empty crop with before I begin talking? That's a part of our bargain, you see."

NEXT STORY—MORE NEWS FROM THE ARK

GREAT FILMS ARE AT THE T. D. & L.

Norma Talmadge's newest picture, "Love's Redemption," which was shown for the first time here yesterday, will be repeated for today only. Tomorrow the T. D. & L. theatre will flash "Peacock Alley" on the screen—the picture all the country is raving about.

With Mae Murray in the stellar role of "Peacock Alley," motion picture fans will have the opportunity to see this beautiful star of stage and screen in one of the most elaborate of productions. The story of a Parisian dancer who falls in love with a small-town American youth and finds her husband's people scandalized when she goes back to his home, resulting in the couple seeking their fortunes in New York, is one which gives Miss Murray an unusual opportunity to appear in many gorgeous and artistic costumes among elaborate settings.

Then there is the man who is a member of so many organizations that the only thing he is sure of is a big funeral.

B. W. SLOAN IS NEW REALTOR HERE

B. W. Sloan, formerly of Hollywood, has moved to Glendale and has built a lovely new home at 524 North Maryland avenue. He will be in charge of the insurance department of the Glendale Realty company.

Mr. Sloan is a native of Iowa, having had six years' experience in the insurance business while a resident of that state. He was formerly a member of the firm of White & Sloan, insurance brokers of Hollywood.

NERVOUS GOLFERS IN FREAK PLAY

Nervous golfers give ear! Here's your chance for a sure cure. A "Bletherin" golf tournament is to be held at Del Monte March 11 and 12. Under the rules of this contest whereby freak competition provides a sure cure for nervous golfers, and at the same time furnishes a lot of fun for the spectators, anything goes. Spectators or players may talk, yell, whistle, dance or do anything they wish except actually touch a contestant or his ball while he is shooting, thus willfully violating ancient golf traditions. Tropy will be awarded to the low score over an 18-hole course.

An enterprising tradesman sent a doctor a box of cigars which had not been ordered, with a bill for $6. The accompanying letter stated that "I have ventured to send these on my initiative, being convinced that you will appreciate their exquisite flavor." In due course the doctor replied: "You have not asked me for a consultation, but I venture to send you three prescriptions, being convinced that you will derive therefrom as much benefit as I shall derive from your cigars. As my charge for a prescription is $2, this makes us even."

EXPECT TROUBLE THEN PROSPERITY

Times of Plenty Is Goal of All Irish With Freedom

Dublin (By mail to the United Press).—Prosperity is the condition which, above all others, stands out in the mind of the Irish as that which will rule when the Free State is set up—prosperity and freedom.

There are many fearful of disorders, even civil war, of constant Republican agitation, of brigandage, of various disorders when the Irish Republic army becomes the army of the Free State.

But all believe that, if the people ratify the treaty by a sufficiently heavy majority, the eventual prosperity of the country is assured.

It is impossible to tell what will follow the election except that the De Valerians will not co-operate in the government.

De Valera's followers are essentially Republicans, and they will be forced to make their appeal for cost, if they hope to retain a following. They do not believe there will be civil war. There will probably be disorders of a sort, probably some of them serious, during the election. Feeling will be bitter in closely contested districts in the south and southwest. There will probably be more disorders when the army becomes that of the free state. The Republican element will be at once loath to be disbanded. Also they will probably form an organization of their own—not necessarily active military. Cork, Kerry and Tipperary, principally Cork, probably will be the trouble centers. There is great probability of sporadic brigandage.

The permanent opposition to the Free State will come, probably, from the Irish Republican Brotherhood. That is split just as wide as the Dail. But the organization will go on, with its nucleus of those of Fenian blood, who are now, as ever, against compromise.

After the first troubled time, the republican activity is expected to be under the surface, always assuming that the Free State is firmly set up.

The people are hoping for and believing in a permanent prosperity. It will be the business of the Free State government to obtain it, by efficient government, by stimulating agriculture and building up industries, perhaps even by obtaining, in time, the adhesion of Ulster to an all-Irish government.

"DOLL'S HOUSE" AT THE GLENDALE

Nazimova, famous star of the stage and screen, who will appear here at the Glendale theatre Monday and Tuesday, in her motion picture version of Henrik Ibsen's "A Doll's House," a United Artists release, is recognized as one of the really distinguished actresses of the age.

Nor is Nazimova alone a pre-eminent actress. Her extraordinary knowledge of the stage and screen and the broad cultivation of her brilliant mind have led her restless ambition into new fields. She has become not alone star of her own productions, but literary arbiter of the stories and dramas she presents and in many cases the adapter of these mediums to the screen.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

UP TO DATE
Now Will Hays has gone to the movies
Judge Landis has gone to baseball.
If this disposition keeps spreading
We'll have no officials at all.
It worries us all beyond measure.
It rouses a patriot's gorge.
When football may draft our Chief Justice
Taft.
And cricket may capture Lloyd George.

If all the amusements keep landing
Our statesmen and diplomats too.
If the sports and the shows get the leaders
Pray what will the government do?
Who knows what the whole world will come to.
If the statesmen all go to the screen,
And the jurists all yield to the call of the field?
There'll be nobody left but Lenine.

When we're through, with the army and navy.
When there isn't a ship or a gob.
The country will be overrunning
With admirals out of a job.
When we send all the generals bumbling.
When hushed all the old battle hymns.
I say, will the prize ring get Pershing—my eyes!
Will the circus commander Sims?

It's well soon that wars will be over.
And statecraft be simple and bland.
For the screen and the field and the gridiron
Are calling the best in the land.
And the patriot fathers, my goodness,
If they were alive, what a scene!
With John Marshall all the big noise in baseball,
And Jefferson bossing the screen.

REV. FORD PLEADS FOR THE FOREIGN MISSIONS

World Is Kicking Bible Around He Tells Baptists

A powerful plea for more liberal support of foreign missionary work was delivered yesterday morning by Rev. E. E. Ford, pastor of the First Baptist church. He took for his subject, "The Master Over Against the Treasury." He said in part:

"If the preacher man talks of money this morning please continue to look pleasant. This is one of the most liberal churches I have ever preached in and when I speak a few words about money this morning I know you will not take offense. It is very often the case that when the missionary comes to tell of his or her work in foreign fields a great many people have a headache, but that is not the way in our church. I want to make this sermon real, to talk in a language we all can understand.

"In our lesson today Jesus had a day of teaching—a day of meeting teachers and enemies. They marvel at his teaching and understanding. He was asked many questions and he answered them all, and it was on this occasion that he silenced the question asker for all time. He told them they erred because they did not know the scriptures.

"When asked, 'which is the greatest commandment,' he said, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart.' The second is likened unto it, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.' I pray thy contention may not enter into this church. I'm not calling for fighting Christians, but I am calling for praying Christians. Our master was not a fighter and we want to follow his example.

"There are many who love Jesus Christ and because they can't give a great deal they hesitate to give what they can. Don't worry about the amount you give—God knows all the circumstances and he knows the spirit in which you give your mite. Your gift may be greater than the gift of those who make large donations. Although many that were rich brought much, Jesus said that the widow gave more than them all.

"Jesus is calling today—I want stewards who I can trust with my things of the world. The world today is belittling the things of God. It is kicking around his book as they would a muddy football.

"Since the war our denominations have increased its donations for foreign missions ten fold. This is raised by tithing, not by oyster suppers. God said, 'I want one-seventh of your time and one-tenth of your money' and if we do not give him these we are cheating him. Every pledge made by this church for foreign missions has been paid, but we should do more—we should give until it hurts, otherwise we are making no real sacrifice. I'm not going to ask you for another cent for you have done nobly. I'm going to tell you that a little more than half of the pledges of the Baptists of this country have been paid, and there is $7,000,000 still unpaid. It would be a grand thing if we could assist in paying this. Every member should do all he can."

A pleasing feature of the morning service was the offertory solo, "He Knows the Way," which was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Cox Arnold.

Rev. Ford's evening subject was "How Much Faith Have You?" At this service Mrs. Paul Elliott rendered a vocal solo entitled, "Rock of Ages."

DEATH TAKES TOLL AT R. R. CROSSING

During the year 1921, 157 persons were killed and 283 injured in grade crossing accidents in the six states served by the Southern Pacific company's Pacific system, according to a report made public yesterday by R. J. Clancy, assistant to the general manager in charge of safety work.

Grade crossing accidents involving automobiles in the year 1921 occurred as follows:

Ran on track in front of train 120
Ran into side of train 186
Stalled or died on track 98
Skidded into side of train 46
Ran into crossing gates 85
Ran down crossing flagman 8
Miscellaneous 3
In about 22 per cent of the total it will be noted that instead of being struck by trains, the automobiles ran into trains, primarily the result of approaching crossing at a speed so great that braking power was not sufficient to stop automobile before hitting train, resulting in four fatalities and 88 injuries.

In 85 instances crossing gates lowered to protect them from train were run through and broken and in eight instances crossing flagmen, warning autoists of approaching trains, were run down and injured.

the ceremony which has drawn thousands of visitors from every corner of England and from the continent to say nothing of hundreds of Americans, who are eagerly seeking places of vantage along the wedding route at $50 a seat. Only two American citizens, Ambassador and Mrs. Harvey, will witness the actual ceremony.

The schedule for the royal wedding has been arranged and will be observed punctiliously, even to the actual minute at which royal relatives of the bride shall leave their palaces for the abbey. The bridal procession with Princess Mary on the arm of her father, King George, will move down the aisle of the abbey to the magnificent altar here Viscount Lascelles will be waiting. Sixteen clergymen will be there to assist at the ceremony. Their number was reinforced today by the addition of the Rev. Marjorie Lascelles, cousin of the Viscount.

Besides its riot of gay colors by day, London will be illuminated with brilliant electric decorations by night for an entire week in honor of the Princess and her husband.

Popular enthusiasm approving the Princess' choice of an Englishman is just beginning to reach its height. All the leading hotels have planned banquets for tomorrow night and Wednesday, in which many of the American visitors to the capital will participate. These latter are arriving in large numbers with each steamer. The time-table for the wedding, which was issued today, provides for the stopping of all traffic along the route of the wedding procession at 8:45 a. m. The last of the guests to arrive at the abbey will be expected to be in their seats by 10:30. The more distant relatives of the Princess will reach the abbey at 11:08 while Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria and their suite will arrive at 11:12. They will await Queen Mary at the door of the abbey. The queen, accompanied by the Duke of York and Princess Henry and George are to leave Buckingham palace in three carriages, with a cavalry escort at 11:03, arriving at the abbey at 11:15. A procession of all the royal guests will then be formed and high officials will escort them to their seats.

Lord Lascelles will arrive at 11:15 and wait in "poet's corner" near the side door.

King George and the bride will leave the palace at 11:16, arriving at the abbey door at 11:28. If the weather permits the king and the princess will drive in an open state carriage. If not, they will use one of the magnificent closed affairs that will be drawn by six coal black horses.

The wedding procession inside the abbey, with the bridesmaids formed, will move forward to the altar to the music of the 62nd Psalm and the anthem "Let Us Love One Another."

During the signing of register, the bride will be played. While the couple is departing, the strains of Mendelssohn's immortal wedding march will swell through the abbey.

Viscount Lascelles and his bride, Her Royal Highness Princess Mary Viscountess Lascelles, as she will then be known, are expected to depart from the abbey at about 12 o'clock. They will drive down Whitehall to the admiralty arch and turn down the Mall, which will be lined with thousands of cheering Londoners and visitors, toward the palace. At St. James street, however, the carriage containing the bride couple will turn off sharply to the right and traverse Piccadilly to Hyde Park corner and Constitution hill, before reaching the palace. It was as yet uncertain whether the king and queen will be there to greet them, although their majesties will go direct to Buckingham palace.

The wedding breakfast, confined to 100 guests, including the families and intimate acquaintances of the bride and groom, will be held at 12:30. They honeymoon itself will start at 3:30. Viscount Lascelles and his royal bride will take a train from Paddington station and leave London together, alone for the first time in their lives.

They will be accompanied by ladies and gentlemen in waiting. As an evidence of the tremendous demand for tickets to the abbey to witness the wedding, it was learned today that many of the highest nobility have been unable to secure admission. Apart from these people holding court posts only 64 peers and peeresses have been invited as such, with a similar number of members of the house of commons and their wives. A careful selection has been made to have representatives of each of the various grades of nobility and commoners within the parliamentary groups.

One hundred journalists, two photographers and one artist will represent the world press. Frank O. Salisbury, famous British artist, has already begun work on an immense canvass, by royal command. The only foreign royalties who will be present at the abbey during the wedding ceremony will be Infante Alfonso and the Infanta Beatrice, children of the King of Spain, Prince Nicholas of Romania and the Grand Duke Michael of Russia.

The Norwegian and Belgian sovereigns who should be expected will not attend. Should any other sovereigns unexpectedly arrive in London before tomorrow, they will be invited.

A change in the program preliminary to the ceremony requires that the coach which the king and princess will arrive at the abbey

Public opinion is like the wind—you know what direction it is blowing today but you can't foretell the direction tomorrow.

ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS JUST BLOW TO PLAY THIS NEW MECHANICAL CORNET

Private Jowett, of the British army of occupation on the Rhine, has invented a mechanical cornet. His invention makes it possible to play a wind instrument almost as easily as one pumps the classics or jazz out of a player piano. A roll of perforated paper, just like a piano roll, causes mechanical fingering and the operator has only to blow in the mouthpiece. A small boy is shown here playing a cornet with this attachment.

shall be followed by two carriages containing the brides and ladies in waiting. The bridesmaids will arrive separately and will await the bride at the abbey door.

King George has made Viscount Lascelles a Knight of the Garter, one of the highest honors of British royalty.

Westminster abbey was closed today, florists and decorators within putting on the finishing touches. The gorgeous carpet down which the wedding procession will approach the altar has been diverted at one point so that the bride and the king and the bridesmaids will not cross the slab which marks the grave of the unknown soldier.

The Princess' Trousseau

Princess Mary is recognized as the fashion leader of Britain today. On the eve of her wedding, London modistes are besieged with orders for gowns patterned after Mary's trousseau. The styles of the past years, are favored over those of Paris.

It is safe to say thousands of brides will walk up the aisle within the next few months wearing wedding dresses of cloth of silver with the sheen of moonshine with a gossamer overdress with designs of pearl and gold, a deep lace collar falling in little showers over the shoulders and a train of white duchess satin shot with silver, for that's what Mary will wear.

Ankle length skirts, long sleeves and long waist lines predominate in the new styles. The evening dresses display flower tassets. One is of blended orchid mauve in georgette over a satin under-dress, fantastically worked with arm laces and silver sequins.

Some of the royal gowns are beyond imitation. One is the simple dinner dress made from some priceless old lace given the Princess by her mother.
